

Cenotaph to be dedicated Monday

Elk Point and district residents will mark the fiftieth anniversary of the end of World War II next Monday with the dedication of a new cenotaph in memory of those who gave their lives to give us peace.

Work on the new cenotaph is expected to be completed in good time for the commemoration, with the exception of the placement of the sculpture, which will be put in place at a later date. The cenotaph is being constructed by Letourneau Masonry, St. Paul, on a three-tier foundation by Earl Labine. The sculpture will be produced by Herman Poulin of St. Paul, who is well known in Elk Point for his creation of the Peter Fidler statue. The cenotaph will bear a bronze plaque made by Behrends Bronze, Edmonton, and will be topped with an eternal flame, supplied by Superior Propane, Elk Point. The area surrounding the cenotaph will be landscaped by B-Line Contracting of Elk Point.

The dedication will be preceded by a parade which will form up at 10:00 a.m. at the Seniors Recreation Centre. It will be led by the 4 Wing Cold Lake Pipe Band, followed by the RCMP, Royal Canadian Legion, special guests, a Marching Quarter Guard and 50 member detachment from Camp Wainwright, representatives of service clubs and others. The parade will march west along 51 Avenue to 51 Street, north one block and west on 52 Avenue past the Parkview Extended Care to 54 Street, where it will turn south to 50 Avenue and pass Heritage Lodge and Elk Point Health Centre on its way back to Valour Park and the new cenotaph.

Ceremonies are expected to start at 11:00 a.m., with O Canada by the Wainwright Marching Quarter Guard. A color party will be led by Royal Canadian Legion Branch 151, while overhead, there will be a fly-past by aircraft from 4 Wing, Cold Lake.

Following messages from Branch Chaplain James MacLellan and special guests, the cenotaph will be unveiled by Legion members Tom McLennan and Jean Russell. It will then be dedicated by Chaplain MacLellan. Cold Lake's bugler will sound the Last Post, after which their Pipe Band will play Amazing Grace and Lament. The bugler will then sound Reveille.

A number of wreaths will be laid in honor of the occasion, followed by the playing of God Save the Queen by the Camp Wainwright Quarter Guard and a "Feu de Joie" by the Camp Wainwright detachment.

Legion member Sid Holthe will thank all those who contributed to the cenotaph project.

The ceremonies will be followed by a light lunch and comradeship in the Recreation Centre, beginning at 12:00 noon.

GOING DOWN! Karate instructor Calvin Leckie is floored by a young participant in the Elk Point Municipal Library's 'Read Around The World' Summer Reading Program, when the readers visited Asia last week.

Wagon finals will run as scheduled

Speculation that the Canadian Professional Chuckwagon Association members who competed in Cheyenne, Wyoming Frontier Days would be unable to return to Canada in time for the CPCA Finals in Lloydminster is over.

Reports last week that the 14 drivers and 24 wagons would be quarantined due to an outbreak of Vesicular Stomatitis virus in the USA were apparently unfounded. The wagons returned to Canada on Tuesday, August 1, with no difficulties. Wyoming has been declared a "clean" slate, therefore the horses competing in Cheyenne have apparently not been exposed to the virus, as was concluded by negative tests in all of the animals.

The finals will take place August 17 to 20 with races starting at 6 p.m. on Thursday through Saturday and at 2 p.m. on Sunday, so get set for some very exciting action!

Water management review

The Water Management Review Committee report was released this week in response to the discussion package on Alberta's water management policy and legislation review.

Paul Langevin
MLA Report

The report is the result of extensive consultations with Albertans from October 1994 to March 1995. The Water Management Review Committee met with over 1,500

Albertans in public review sessions, conducted a two-day workshop for interest groups, heard from more than 3,500 Albertans at additional information sessions and received over 300 written submissions.

This report outlines 75 recommendations on the protection, conservation and management of Alberta's water resources ranging from the rights of water users to water management projects. One of the key recommendations is that the new water policy and legislation ensures the following outcomes:

- * efficient and sustainable water use for future generations;

- * healthy and sustainable aquatic and riparian (shore-line) ecosystems;

- * sustained opportunities for economic benefit;

- * flexibility to respond to changing societal needs and values;

- * flexibility to respond to changes in water supply;

- * protection of current users;

- * efficiency and fairness in administering the water legislation;

- * public involvement in effective decision-making process;

- * stewardship;

- * flexibility to manage our water resources by region.

Legislation to replace the existing Water Resources Act will be introduced in the legislature in the 1995 fall sitting. It will be based on the review committee's report and ongoing consultations with Albertans. M.L.A.'s will have the opportunity to debate the bill in the legislature at this time.

On behalf of the government of Alberta, I urge you to respond to the recommendations made in the report. Let me know which changes should or should not be made. Your input is important and encouraged as the new water policy and legislation will affect all Albertans.

If you have any questions or concerns on this or any other issue, or would like a copy of the Water Management Review Committee report, please contact me at my Constituency Office at 645-6999 St. Paul or 623-1730 Lac La Biche.

Free ticket nets $100,000

One win led to another for local resident Don Turner, who matched all six digits of the Plus on his July 26 lottery ticket to win $100,000. "I always felt I would win," stated the heavy equipment operator, who purchased his ticket at Tags Food and Gas.

He discovered his win when he went to check his tickets. "It looks like you won $100,000," the retailer told him, and helped him to fill out the claim form.

The father of three plans to "pay bills, purchase a newer truck, maybe a boat and motor, and put the balance in the bank."

WGTA transition forms in the mail

With the death of the Crow Rate on July 31 came the birth of a program aimed at buffering the effects of the loss of Western Grain Transportation Act subsidies. These subsidies paid $550 million of grain transportation costs last year alone, and will be a hard act to follow, even with $1.6 billion in compensation payments.

The payment will be made direct to landowners, and will supposedly make up for the decline in land value which may result from the loss of subsidized grain freight rates. The one-time capital payment can be used to adjust the tax base on the land, and could conceivably be tax-free if current capital gains rules remain in effect.

The decision to pay the landowners does not sit well with some tenant farmers who are concerned with the impact on their finances if their landowners do not agree to share the funds with them. To alleviate this problem, the landowner must sign a portion of the form indicating that an acceptable agreement has been made with the tenant. If this is not done, the tenant has until October 15 to file a complaint.

The terms of the payment also do not sit well with people who grow forage crops, as there will not be any subsidy on acres which were in these crops for the 1994-95 crop year. The eligible acres include only those planted to annual crops or those in summerfallow at that time.

Neil Blue, a marketing specialist with Alberta Agriculture in Vermilion, told farmers at the LARA Field Day that the subsidy is "no huge amount," ranging from $2000 to $3000 per quarter section, and averaging $18 per acre of eligible land.

With the WGTA gone, and farmers are faced with paying all of their own freight costs, Blue feels "there will be interesting times." He said malsters are buying barley direct from farmers and trucking the grain direct to their plants, rather than buying from the elevator companies. The increase in truck transport and in farmers looking toward marketing their grain locally could mean the closure of more and more rail lines, as the market becomes more "domestic driven," Blue concluded.

Midsummer meeting a dream

Those who planned a midsummer meeting for Elk Point Chamber of Commerce last Wednesday were apparently dreaming. Only the president and secretary showed up for the noon luncheon, so no business could be transacted. A glance at the minutes from mid-June showed that the members who made a motion to hold the meeting were not among those who were present for it. Therefore, Chamber is once again on holidays until September 6.

LARA Field Day explores agricultural alternatives

Last Thursday's Field Day at the Lakeland Agricultural Research Association Fort Kent Research Farm explored a wide variety of alternative crops and livestock, and gave insight into many new opportunities for northeast Alberta farmers.

Seminars on the impact of transgenic technology on agriculture and opportunities in agriculture and an update on the Western Grain Transportation Act's transition payment program were interspersed with tours of countless plots of grain, oilseed and specialty crops. Many new varieties of the more common grains were included, as were such newcomers to the Alberta scene as quinoa, broad beans, caraway, sunwheat and grain amaranth. There was also a test plot of herbs, many of which appear to be well adapted to our climate.

A definite highlight of the event were the alternative livestock displays, which included a pair of Alpacas, the smaller cousin of the llama, which have a thick fibre coat combining the characteristics of wool and hair. The Alpaca is a South American animal which currently sells for $50,000 per breeding pair. The fibre is sheared from these animals and used to produce yarn and woven fabrics.

The increasingly popular Boer Goats, a meat breed which are docile, playful and have great investment potential, and two cute striped Wild Boar piglets, which originated in Europe and are well adapted to our climate, were also on display, as was information on bison, deer and elk farming, and ostriches.

The final seminar gave additional insight in to the many new and exciting opportunities in agriculture. Kirsty Piquette, Pulse and Special Crop Specialist with Alberta Agriculture and Rural Development in St. Paul, said that because of the low grain prices, people are looking at alternative crops in increasing numbers, and this will be increased further by the demise of the Crow Rate. Field pea production has increased substantially over the past year, and has been joined by beans, canary seed and sunflowers as major specialty crops. A number of minor specialty crops, including grain corn, safflower, herbs and spices and faba beans are gaining in popularity. She emphasized that those anticipating a move to these crops should consider what is involved in marketing them, should research carefully their needs for healthy growth, and should start on a small scale.

Sharon Stollery, the Rural Development Specialist from St. Paul, works with many families considering diversification. She said that spice crops are worth more than herbs, and can be farmed with conventional equipment, whereas herbs, which utilize leaves, roots and flowers, require more handling and specialized equipment. Herbs can be sold to the food industry, for pharmaceutical use and for the production of essential oils. Some herbs are also harvested from the wild. Again, she cautioned would-be producers to "start small."

Chuck Hudespahl, a livestock diversification expert with Alberta Agriculture who works primarily with game farms, said that the profit margin for conventional livestock is small, and people are looking for new opportunities. "You can go back to animals that evolved from native species (elk, deer, bison) or try something totally new and foreign." The latter include the wild boar, alpacas and llamas, ostriches and other rarities. He said that one must decide if they want to produce a similar product at a lower cost, or a new product altogether. For the new products, one must assess how large a market there would be, and how easy is to access this market. There is a "speculator's market" for new types of livestock, and seedstock commands a premium price, however "no new venture is without risk," and a person branching out into these areas should do some careful research to minimize this risk.

They're back! Cheyenne winner second in Turtleford

A full slate of Canadian Professional Chuckwagon Association races took place this past weekend at Turtleford, SK. The Cheyenne drivers arrived home safe and sound and all were present at the Turtleford meet.

The winner of the Cheyenne show was Buddy Bensmiller of Dewberry, who finished first and second overall. Third was Herman Flad of Bodo, AB.

Thirty six wagons competed at Turtleford, and it was Brian Laboucane of St. Walburg winning the two day event with a third place finish Saturday and a win on Sunday for a total time of 2:01.95. Buddy Bensmiller finished fourth on Saturday and second on Sunday for the second best total time of 2:02.72. Luke Tournier won Saturday's day money, with Herman Flad second.

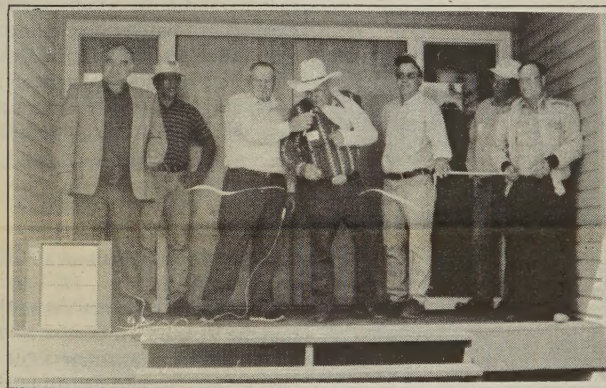

The points race is really tight with only 19.5 points separating first and third, with seven big points days left in the season. You are sure to see some close heats at Loon Lake, SK this weekend and at the Finals in Lloydminster August 17 to 20, as the drivers will be aiming to finish in the top 17 to go to Calgary in 1996.

The Loon Lake races start at 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday, with over 35 wagons entered as they gear up for the finals.

The top 20 wagons at this point are: 1. Ray Mitsuing, 200 pts.; 2. Brian Laboucane, 186; 3. Buddy Bensmiller, 180.5; 4. Luke Tournier, 165; 5. Grant Preece, 161; 6. Rod Salmond, 156.5; 7. Bert Croteau, 152.5; 8. Herman Flad, 134; 9. Harold McCarthy, 123; 10. Jim Knight, 115.5; 11. Ray Croteau, 115; 12. Stan Robertson, 104; 13. Wayne Dagg, 98.5; 14. Jim Duncan, 92; 15. An act of remembrance

Next Monday, we will dedicate a new cenotaph to the memory of those who gave the ultimate sacrifice for their country in two World Wars and the smaller conflicts which followed them.

That day, August 14, will also mark the 50th anniversary of victory over Japan, which was accomplished by the bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki by the United States, killing in two brief moments more people than the United States lost in the entire length of the war.

Therefore, let us not only remember the servicemen and women who died, but also all the civilians who lost their lives, in Japan, in Great Britain and Europe. They too paid for the peace we enjoy.

It must never happen again, and we must see it doesn't. Keep the peace.

GOOD STAFF APPRECIATED - Sharon and Maurice Lafrance really appreciate their dedicated staff members. When Kathy deMoissac marked five years with Tags Food and Gas last week, they presented her with a trip for two to Las Vegas and held a barbecue to mark the occasion.

Canada Remembers

Canada and the War in the Far East - Part II

Canada Remembers is a program commemorating those who served in World War II and the efforts they made so that the people of Canada could live in peace.

In 1943, the Americans launched a campaign to retake Attu and Kiska, and Canada provided an infantry brigade, troops for the combined American-Canadian Special Service Force, and naval and air forces. The Japanese fought to hold Attu, but when the Canadian-American force landed on Kiska, they found that the island had been abandoned days before.

In 1943-44 the British Fourteenth Army turned the tide in northern Burma and eastern India in a series of hard-fought battles, and many individual Canadians fought with the British army and air force during these operations. One was Major Charles Hoey of Duncan, BC, who had joined the British Army in the mid-1930s. In Burma in February 1944, Hoey led his infantry company in an assault on a hill held by the Japanese. He was killed, but his gallantry earned him the Victoria Cross.

In the air, Canadian Pilot Officer H. Armstrong, flying Hurricanes with the Royal Air Force's 185 Squadron, shot down three Japanese bombers and assisted in the destruction of a fourth in just three days in March 1943.

The British found that the American B-24 Liberator was an effective long-range bomber in the Far East, and soon had several squadrons of the huge planes operating there. Many members of these units came from a Canadian training station in British Columbia. To this day, these veterans call themselves the "Burma

Bombers."

In November 1944, the Allies began the campaign to push the enemy out of India and Burma. This involved attacking over a mountain range and then down into the jungles of Burma itself. There were no roads over the mountains, so British General Sir William Slim came up with a then-novel solution. The entire army was to be supplied by air. To do this, he needed large numbers of supply aircraft capable of landing on dirt airstrips just behind the lines, or even parachuting supplies onto the front lines themselves.

Included in this air armada were Canada's 435 and 436 Transport Squadrons flying twin-engined Dakotas. The two squadrons flew right up to the edge of enemy territory carrying troops, ammunition and food. They were frequently fired at from the ground, and two Dakotas were shot down by Japanese fighters.

Canadians were involved in other special groups in the Far East, such as the "Sea Reconnaissance Unit," a group of frogmen who spearheaded the British Army's assaults across the rivers of Burma. Lieutenant-Commander B. S. Wright led the unit and Flight Lieutenant G. H. Avery won the first Military Cross ever awarded to a frogman, for bravery in the assault crossing the Irrawaddy River.

Another special group included 40 Japanese-Canadians and Chinese-Canadians who volunteered to fight in the Far East. Their language skills were of great benefit to the Allies as they worked as interpreters with intelligence units or with the secret "Force 136" teams that went behind enemy lines and worked with guerillas to harass enemy supply lines. Several of them were decorated for their actions, and their service was a major factor in influencing the Canadian government to grant Chinese- and Japanese-Canadians full rights as Canadian citizens several years later.

After the war in Europe ended, the Allies began to concentrate their great military power in the Far East. The first Canadian force to make its additional presence felt was the Royal Canadian Navy, when the cruiser HMCS Uganda joined the British Pacific Fleet in time to participate in the Allied operations around Okinawa in the spring of 1945. The auxiliary cruiser HMCS Prince Robert, which had helped transport Canada's troops to the ill-fated defence of Hong Kong in 1941, returned to the Pacific theatre and had the satisfaction of assisting in the liberation of the prisoners of war in Hong Kong.

During this period, a small group of Canadians were flying with the Fleet Air Arm off British aircraft carriers. On August 9, Lieutenant Robert Hampton Gray of Nelson, BC, flew his Corsair divebomber off HMS Formidable to attack Japanese shipping near the Home Islands. He spotted a Japanese destroyer in Onagawa Bay and dove to attack. Although his aircraft was hit repeatedly by anti-aircraft fire, he continued his dive until his aim was certain. His bombs struck the ship amidships and it quickly sank. Gray crashed a short distance away, and was subsequently awarded a posthumous Victoria Cross.

Where in the town of Elk Point can you find the pictures of nearly 250 people, a record of 200 years of transportation, the portraits of very prominent local persons, representatives of service clubs and organizations, cars, trucks, dogs, horses, cattle and important town buildings that are no more?

Quite right! The town's historical mural. Created over a two year period, with a lot of research and effort, the mural depicts Elk Point's developing years from the time of the Northwest Rebellion to the grand opening of the new bridge across the North Saskatchewan River.

A hundred feet of history

Seven years after the mural's completion, it is still drawing people from all over Alberta. Many of these people are former 'Elk Pointers' who come back to relive the past and to try and identify themselves or relatives or friends among the figures on the 800 square foot mural.

Take time to renew your acquaintance with our town's past and visit the mural today. If you would like more information or would like help in identifying some of the people on the mural, please come and see us at the TIC (Tourist Information Centre).

Canada's involvement has now built up to the point where more than 10,000 Canadians had served or were serving in the Far East. The RCAF alone had over 3100 in the theatre in 1945.

Meanwhile, preparations continued for the Canadian contribution to the invasion of the Japanese Home Islands planned for the fall of 1945. A complete infantry division and several air squadrons were being readied - a force of more than 24,000. All preparations stopped when the atomic bombs were dropped on Japan, causing the Japanese to surrender unconditionally on August 15, 1945. The shock of this new instrument of war was mixed with the joy of peace and the knowledge that no more Canadians would have to die in one of the most terrible wars in history.

On September 2, 1945, the formal surrender documents were signed on board the American battleship USS Missouri in Tokyo Harbor. Colonel Lawrence M. Cosgrave signed on behalf of Canada, and the Second World War was officially over.

Irrigation Means Summer Fun

This summer, thousands of Albertans will camp, fish, hike, bird-watch and water-ski in and around our multiple-use irrigation system. The system supplies 80 bodies of water throughout the province and makes a range of recreational activities possible. These are enjoyed by people in the region, along with people in cities. Calgarians, for example, are the second most frequent users of irrigation reservoirs.

Softball players heading for Western Canada Summer Games

Two area softball players, Marty Bendixen of Heinsburg and Kyle Braithwaite of Clandonald, are heading to the Western Canada Summer Games in Abbotsford, BC later this month as part of Team Alberta. Bendixen has the additional distinction of being chosen as captain of the team.

They will fly from Calgary on August 14 to take part in the Games, which run from August 15 to August 20.

The Alberta Amateur Softball Association and their coaching staff have conducted a two year evaluation and training program across the province to find the best ban-dam age softball players available. These players have proven to be a credit to their local associations, teams and coaches.

The best of luck to the boys and to Team Alberta. Go show them how it's done!

NEAT athletes win three medals at provincials

Joni Matthews and Blair Babych of the North Eastern Alberta Track and Field Club (N.E.A.T.) clinched three medals at the Provincial Senior Track and Field Championship held at Saskatoon August 4 to 6.

Matthews won the long jump and placed third in the triple jump, while Babych placed second in the javelin throw.

The pair were up against the best track and field athletes in the provinces of Alberta, Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and they, along with their coach (and team manager) Reg Green, will now be heading off to Abbotsford, B.C. to take part in the Western Canadian Summer Games from August 14 to 20.

Four other N.E.A.T. athletes — Tammy Clark, Michelle Robert, Calvin Coloumbe and Clint Lapatack — will be leaving shortly for National Legion Camp in Winnipeg, which takes place from August 10-17.

HARD WORK PAYS OFF for Marty Bendixen (left) and Kyle Braithwaite, whose ball-playing prowess has resulted in their being selected for Team Alberta's competition at the Western Canada Summer Games.
